Mountains of Fresh Candy!

50,000 pounds of Candy and only seven shopping days to Xmas. Will we sell them? By the time Xmas eve puts in its appearance, there won't be enough left to tell the tale. Where some stores bought by the pound, we ordered by the buckets; where they bought 10 varieties, we ordered a hundred. It's the largest candy stock in the city. It's the best in the city, and for low prices you won't find equal qualities for near double. To demonstrate the absolute purity of every morsel, we might safely offer any amount of money to the chemist able to find where any impurity or adulteration has been used. Order now for Xmas delivery. Pick out the kind you desire, and they will be delivered satisfactorily on the day you designate. Services in Commemoration of Death of Washington.

LARGE ADDIENCE AT CONVENTION HALL

Address by Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York.

PROGRAM OF EXERCISES

Memorable services in honor of George Washington were held in Convention Hall last evening under the auspices of the Great Council of the United States Im-proved Order of Red Men. There were over 6,000 people gathered there.

The oration of Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York was the feature of the occasion. Three sentiments of the orator called forth unusual applause from the audience. They were his reference to the friendship of England, with the statement that this country wants no alliance with any foreign nation, his reference to our colonial possessions, and to the situation of the United States at the open door of China, where the liberty of trading could not be restricted. The great hall was tastefully decorated not be restricted.

The great hall was tastefully decorated with patriotic colors, and every seat and all available standing room was occupied. Members of the order, dressed in their continental uniform and powdered wigs, acted as ushers. The United States Marine Band, under the direction of Lieut. Wm. H. Santelmann, its leader, rendered several selections before the exercises were formally opened by Grand Incohonee George E. Green of New York, who was the presiding officer. The speakers of the evening, with distinguished guests, occupied seats on the platform at the southern end of the hall. There were present not only prominent representatives of the Order of Red Men from all parts of the United States, but representatives of all branches of the government, as well as members of the government, as well as members of the platform were: E. D. Wiley, Iowa, great senior sagamore; Thomas G. Harrison, Indians, great senior sagamore; Robert T. Daniel, Georgia, great prophet; Charles G. Conley, Pennsylvania, great chief of records; William Provin, Massachusetts, great keeper of wampum; Peter J. Dobbs, New York, great tocakon; F. H. Saylor, Oregon, great minewa; George W. Carey, Ohio, great guard of forest; Past Great Incohonees James A. Parsons of Pennsylvania; George W. Lindsay, Maryland; Charles H. Litchman, Massachusetts; William H. Hyronemus, Tennessee; Ralph S. Gregory, Indiana; Charles C. Conley, Pennsylvania; Thomas J. Francis, New Jersey; Thomas K. Donnalley, Pennsylvania; Thomas J. Francis, New Jersey; Thomas K. Donnalley, Pennsylvania; Thomas E. Peckinpaugh, Ohio; Andrew H. Paton, Massachusetts, and Robert T. Daniel, Georgia.

Senator Platt of Connecticut and Representative Otgen of Wisconsin, among others, occupied seats on the platform.

Chaplain Couden's Invocation.

Chaplain Couden's Invocation. Great Incohonee Green opened the service and divine blessing was invoked by Rev. Dr. Henry N. Couden, chaplain of the House of Representatives, who offered thanks for the bountiful hand of Providence thanks for the bountiful hand of Providence that had so 'liberally blessed the nation during the past year. "America" was played by the Marine Eand, the entire audience singing the retrain in unison with the instruments, The Arion Singing Society, led by Mr. Emil Holer, sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Past Great Incohonee Charles H. Litchman of Massachusetts spoke of the foundation of the order, addressing his audience as his "pale-faced" friends. He traced the growth of the Independent Order of Red Men from the Sors of Liberty, which had been founded by the patriots of America, who had joined together to achieve the liberty of their country. The Order of Red Men had been reorganized in 1833 as the Improved Order of Red Men, and its members had been in every patriotic movement and on every battlefield where American honor had been upheld. In the war with Spain, he said, 20,000 Red Men had enlisted for the defense of the flag, the entire membership now numbering more than 200,000. "The American Flag" was recited by W. Millian of this city. "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" was rendered by the Marine Band and Great Prophet Robert T. Daniel of Georgia delivered an eloquent address on the purposes of the order. His flights of oratory were frequently interrupted by applause.

Mr. Depew was greeted with enthusiastic applause as he appeared on the platform. He said in part:
"Centuries come and centuries go. From the limitless past two stand out conspicuously. History is a disheartening record of experiment and failure in the culture of liberty. But in the eighteenth century the foundations of human rights were laid deep, strong and perpetual, and upon them deep, strong and perpetual, and upon them the nineteenth has builded with marvelous success. The wonders of our period were made possible by the wisdom and courage of its predecessor. The eighteenth century witnessed the life and work of Washington. The nineteenth is reaping its fruitage. Happily for humanity the settlement of our country was delayed until the modern spirit had broken the chains of mediaevalism and feudalism until there was a clear apprehension of civil and religious liberty.

"The Puritans in England, and Luther and Calvin on the continent, had inaugurated independence of thought and speech and brought into the arena of discussion the gravest problems of life, while trade and commerce had created an educated middle class possessed of the open mind which comes from contact with the world. Naseby and Marston Moor had rudely shattered reverence for power, unless its decrees were based on right, and the beheading of Charles the First had dethroned the divinity which had been the safety of kings. Three thousand miles of ocean and the exhausting wars of Europe had left the colonists thus nurtured and taught to work out, with little interference from home, their ideas of government for themselves and by themselves. The habeas corpus, the bill of rights, the common law, the literature of a noble period for English letters were theirs. They had left behind aristocracy, primogeniture and entail. eracy, primogeniture and entail.

The Bible's Influence.

THE LAKEWOOD SEASON. Mr. and Mrs. Gould Will Soon Open Their Private Casino.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. LAKEWOOD, N. J., December 14, 1899. Since the crowds and the rush of social and sporting events, which characterized Thanksgiving week, Lakewood has resumed its wonted quiet, and though the resort is still well filled, there seems to be a very general disposition to rest a little before the coming of similar activities for the Yuletide festivities. The golf club of Lakewood, which scored a perfect success in its Thanksgiving tournament, has only its regular Saturday a perfect success in its Thanksgiving tournament, has only its regular Saturday handicap for a prize fixture, though the links are daily patronized by members and their friends in informal competition. The Country Club of Lakewood, another fashionable sporting resort, has not yet announced anything in the line of regular golf events, but there also family parties and friendly circles enjoy daily piay, which is pleasantly concluded with 5 o'clock tea, served in the handsome rooms as the golfers come in from out the dusk. A live-bird shoot at the traps of this club is an event set down for Saturday morning, which will doubtless have, as last year, attractions for many visiting wing shots.

Next week the new casino, which has been building for the past year at Georgian Court, the lake drive estate of Geo. J. Gould, will be opened to a host of the personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gould. The big mansion will be filled, as well as the twenty-five or more fine rooms which the casino itself accommodates, while upward of seventy-five more rooms at the Laurel-in-the-Pines have been engaged for friends who are expected. Theatrical diversions at the house will be a prominent social feature, and Mrs. Gould will on that occasion return to the stage for the entertainment of her friends, and there will be polo on the fields and all manner of sport at the casino.

The Laurel-in-the-Pines, notwithstanding its handsome 100-room addition since last year, is also booked up full for the holidays, and this means the most successful season it has ever known. The new wing is ready for its opening, and a few of its rooms are already in use. An elaborate special dinner, given by James C. Parrish of New York to a party of fifteen of his friends, was a Sunday evening function. Lakewood is this week the headquarters of the United Society of Christian Endeavor and the trustees of the society, over forty in number, and all clergymen of prominence, representing thirty or more evangelical denominations in all parts of the country, are planning the program for the year's work of the great society.

No Break in the Continuity, From the Chicago Tribune.

"I want you to dismiss the idea," said the eminent professor, "of the so-called cliff dwellers being a prehistoric and now extinct race of human beings. Thousands of their descendants are alive at this day."
"That's so," exclaimed an enthusiastic student, "They live in flats."

Inspiring Confidence.

From the Chicago Record "It pays to be cheerful." "That's right; as long as you look as if you had money your creditors have confi-dence in you."

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured in Morton L.
